

Table ronde : Et ensuite ? La vie après l'obtention d'un doctorat en linguistique
Round Table: What's Next? Life after a PhD in Linguistics
Samedi le 27 mai | Saturday, May 27 2017
TRSM 1-073, 12:45-2:15
CLA/ACL

Panel member and M.C.

Gretchen McCulloch: MA in syntax, McGill University 2013. Pop linguistics for The Toast, Slate, my blog All Things Linguistic, and podcast Lingthusiasm, writing a book about internet language for Penguin.

Panel Members:

Richard Compton: Ph.D. in Syntax, University of Toronto, 2012. Currently Assistant Professor at Université du Québec à Montréal.

Chiara Frigeni: Ph.D. in Phonology, University of Toronto, 2009. Currently Children and Youth Mental Health Therapist at ROCK Reach Out Centre for Kids.

Alex Motut: MA in 2009. Current PhD Candidate in Syntax at University of Toronto, and Assistant Professor, Teaching Stream in Writing Instruction/Writing Instruction for TAs Coordinator (2017-2018), Faculty of Arts and Science, University of Toronto.

Christopher Spahr: PhD 2016 in Phonology from the University of Toronto. Now a Software Developer at Tulip Retail.

Dennis Storoshenko: PhD in Linguistics from Simon Fraser University in 2010. Currently an Assistant Prof in syntax/semantics at the University of Calgary (arriving in 2013).

Chiara will also represent the following 3 people.

Magdalena Goledzinowska: Ph.D., in Syntax, University of Toronto, 2007. Currently Managers of Ethics and Internal Programs, Humber College.

Catherine Macdonald: Ph.D. in Syntax, University of Toronto, 2014. currently Program Assistant, Association of Family Health Teams of Ontario.

Sarah Clarke: Ph.D. in Syntax, University of Toronto, 2013. Currently Project Coordinator, Women's College Hospital.

Any questions, please contact Organizer, Diane Massam at diane.massam@utoronto.ca